The Superior 100 Mile Trail Race has been aptly described as the "Superbowl of Midwest ultrarunning." The point-topoint 100-mile trail race is paired with two of the most challenging and scenic 50-mile and 26.2mile trail races in the country. Minnesota's Superior 100 was established in 1991 as one of the original dozen 100-mile footraces in the United States and is considered one of the "legacy" 100 milers. The race's reach goes well beyond the region, having throughout the years earned a reputation as a national-class event, drawing runners from 36 states and five countries. All available spots for the 2015 race were filled via a lottery over a 10-day span six months in advance of the September event.

The race is frequently cited for its unparalleled volunteer support and for striking the right balance between refined management/execution while maintaining a fun, low-key atmosphere as can only be achieved when a race is passionately produced by ultrarunners for ultrarunners. Those who experience race weekend once will almost certainly find themselves back year after year as runners, volunteers, pacers or spectators. As a result, there's a very strong community and culture that has flourished around the event.

Thursday night's 100-mile pre-race meeting and dinner in Two Harbors Minnesota saw (retired) race founder and 12-time Western States finisher Harry Sloan (along with his Co-Director Tami Tanski-Sherman) inducted into the Superior Trail Race Hall of Fame. What made this extra special was the fact that the following morning, at the age of 67, Harry was for the first time running in the race he created hoping to make the Superior 100 his "swan song" or better yet, knowing Harry, his comeback at the 100-mile distance.

Jake Hegge (Onalaska, WI), Michael Borst (La Crosse, WI), Samuel Jurek (Oak Bluffs, MA) and Dylan Armanaji (New York, NY) presented as clear front-runners early on. After pacing his friend and training partner Borst to a second-place finish in 2014, Hegge pinned on his own race number this year. Onlookers expected more of the same from the two insanely positive, joyful and energetic running buddies and waited for yet another course record to fall.

Running neck and neck through 100k, Hegge and Borst looked like they could be so evenly matched that they would bring it in together, as they have done in past races, but this time Hegge stretched his lead in the pre-dawn hours, eventually smashing the previous course record.

Somewhere mid-way through, third-place runner and one of the race favorites Samuel Jurek hit a bad patch and went down – no, not falling down, but to sleep. In what ended up being one of countless inspiring performances throughout the weekend, Jurek got back up and made his way to the finish in the middle of the pack with the humble disposition of a gracious ultra-competitor.

Filling Jurek's shoes in third place was Alexandria, Minnesota's own Brian Klug. Early on, Klug looked like he was going to take it easy and not press the issue, and by doing so methodically moved his way up the field throughout the race for an eventual third-place overall finish.

Canadian Mallory Richard was welcomed as the first woman through all 13 aid stations and convincingly defended her Superior 100 mile title as the first woman, and even notched a top-10 overall finish among the boys. A strong predictor of this performance was not only her defending champ status but that Richard won overall (against men and women alike) at the 2015 Black Hills 100. Tina Johnson, impressively finishing her fourth Superior 100, took second and her best time and place to date. First-time Superior 100 runner Gretchen Brugman of Truckee, CA, got to experience first-hand the difference between buttery California singletrack and Minnesota boreal roots, rocks and unreasonably steep ascents void of switchbacks. She rounded out the top three with an impressive performance her first time racing on the uber-technical trail.

As for Harry Sloan... someone at the finish summed it up best when they said, "you just can't make this stuff up." At the age of 67 Harry battled two days and saw two sunsets to masterfully finish "his" race in 37:58:38 – just one minute and twenty one seconds under the cutoff. The energy and emotion at the finish line was palpable as many waited for the man to finish.

50 MILES

John Horns is one of only two men to have won both the Superior 100-mile race and the marathon (multiple times at each) so when his name hit the 50-mile registration list again, people were rooting for Horns to take the "W" and be the first to achieve the "Triple Crown." At first glance, this might have been considered a manageable task for the master. That was, until you scanned the list of registered runners and saw that "the" Chris Lundstrom was also registered for the race. While Horns has a trail and ultrarunning pedigree that is unmatched, Lundstrom has bona-fide elite times associated with his name, and a few untouched 50k trail course records throughout the region.

Well, as with any major race there are surprises before the gun even goes off. Like the class act that he is, Horns showed up a few days prior, helped mark trail, volunteered and still managed to ready himself for the 50, but perhaps at a cost to his energy. "Lundo" never showed and an up-and-comer stole the entire show.

Chase Nowak ran unimpeded and mostly unchallenged to an absolutely elated 9:04 finish, Brent Loberg took second and Horns took third. In the women's race, Stacia Broderick and Lauren Cline had a much closer margin than the men as they went "onetwo" with only a seven-minute differential, while last year's defending champ, Kristin Rognerud, rounded out the top three.
